

E.J. Kitchens

Speaker, author, editor

E.J. Kitchens, author of over ten books, loves helping others through her words. She is an engaging speaker who focuses on the practical, empowering listeners to accomplish their goals. She has several speaking topics and is open to developing additional talks based on audience needs.

Speaking Topics

Writing Fantasy

Use story elements, especially goals and conflict, to develop both a fantasy world that is tightly woven into the story itself and an engaging story readers can't put down.

Math for Authors: Setting a price for your books and calculating profit, taxes, and break-even point for in-person events and selling direct

Learn about the math that makes you--or loses you--money. Consider taxes, payment processing fees, setting prices to make a certain profit, and more in this practical workshop.

Making It to The End

Haven't finished your book yet? Learn about common story problems and types of internal resistance that impede progress and how to overcome them.

Elixir or Poison?: Gaining and evaluating feedback from critique partners, contests, editors, and beta-readers

Smart authors get feedback--and know what to take and what to leave. Learn how to gain and evaluate feedback to improve your writing.

Indie Publishing: From manuscript to a book that sells

A practical and honest guide to indie publishing given in a conversation manner.

Don't Be Ruled by Rules

How understanding the concept of principles versus rules can help you in your writing and life.

I W.R.I.T.E.: An introduction to writing a novel

Have you always dreamed of writing a novel but don't know where to start? This overview will help you get started and discover that your novel is only a page away.

If you would like more information or to contact

E.J. Kitchens about speaking, please use this link or visit this webpage: <https://www.ejkitchens.com/speaking/>

Your next book is only a page away.